A Companion Piece to Wm. W Dudley's "Floater" Letter.

Quay, Dudley and Clarkson Accased of Receiving Stolen Goods.

Serious Charges Made and Confessions to Back Them.

Col. William W. Dudley, the Treasurer of the Republican National Committee, is in danger again. It is his peculiar disregard of provisions of law in attaining his political ends which is continually keeping him in hot water. His Indiana " floater " letter still menaces him with indictment at the hands of the Federal Grand Jury in that jurisdiction, and now facts have come to light which would seem to render him liable to indictment in this county for receiving stolen goods.

A comparison of the tac-simile of Dudley's letter to Durfee, published in The World of this morning, with that of the "floater" let-ter published in The Evening World Nov.

2, 1888, is interesting.

The letter to Durfee was evidently written on the same typewriter as the other after the removal of the National Committee to Washington.

The most curious fact revealed by the comparison is that Dudley made a marked effort to change the character of his signature after the publication of the floater letter, as if to assist him in proving the document to be a forgery.

Where he formerly signed himself "Wm. where he formerly signed himself "Wm.

W.," in a spider-like, angular hand, his letter to Durfee bears a signature in which the "W's" are only enlarged lower case letters and a flourish has been added to the final "y."

The general characteristics of the signature are there, however, despite this evident den this last affair. That great apostle of political purity, Senator Matt S. Quay, and John S. Clarkson, the Vice-Chairman of the National Committee, who has been prominently mentioned as a member of President Harrison's tioned as a member of President Harrison's Cabinet, are both involved, and the latter, in fact, seems to have been the actual receiver of the purloined article.

The article stolen and sold to Clarkson was the mailing list of the Voice, the National Prohibition organ, which is published by Funk & Wagnalls at 18 and 20 Astor place.

The amount paid was $250, and the thieves were Charles A. Durfee and James I. Sansom, employees in the mailing department of the employees in the mailing department of the

Both have made written confession of their dealings with Clarkson, Quay and Dudley, and Durfee has letters from both Clarkson and Dudley which would seem to corroborate his statement that they offered him a good Government position for his assistance to the keepublican cause in the late campaign by robbing his employers.

Rev. Dr. Albert E. Funk, of the publishing firm, said when asked if it is proposed to prosecute the Republican leaders criminally for their receipt of the stolen mail list, that that will be determined by the Executive Committee of the Prohibition party in a few days.

Col. Fellows was so busy with preparations for the Cleary trial that he refused to be interviewed on the matter or say whether he would bring the matter before the Grand Jury for their consideration.

GAMBLERS IN ELIZABETH.

The Police Raided a Finely Furnished Den and Caught Ten Men.

[SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.] ELIZABETH, N. J., Jan. 9. - A big haul of gamblers was made last night by the Elizabeth police.

Chief Austin and Capt. Brant, at the head of a force of officers, burst open the doors of a room at 200 Broad street and found the place filled with poker players. Some of the gamblers tried to escape, but were promptly collared by the police. Five packs of cards and 700 poker chips were cap-tured. Ten men were arrested and marched to Police Headcasters.

The gambling den was run by David Dunham, of Rahway, and Lewis Price, of Roselle. It was luxuriously fitted up and had a large sideboard well stocked with wines and lignors.

The prisoners are all from Roselle, Rahway and Elizabeth.
The Police Court was crowded this morning when the prisoners were led out. Several prominent citizens were present to give ball for the offenders, who were placed under $1,500 ball each to appear before the Grand Jury.

Price and Dunham were held on two

The Little Village Nearly Wiped Out by Fire.

Eight Stores and the Post-Office Are in Ashes.

Caused by a Sick Man Overturning a Kerosene Oll Lamp.

[SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WOR. D.] RUTHERFORD, N. J., Jan. 9. - The most dis astrous fire that ever occurred in this village broke out shortly after 12.30 this morning

It burned up nearly a whole block and laid in ashes eight stores and the Post-Office. The conflagration had its origin in the bedroom of Henry Burgmeister, an upholsterer, who has rooms over his store fronting on Depot Square and directly opposite the railroad depot. Burgmeister, who was sick in bed, got up at 12.30 to get some medicine, when the keroseno lamp which he carried fell from his hand and exploded, setting fire to some excelsior. In a few minutes the place was enveloped in flames. John Dupuy, foreman of the Hook and Ladder Company of the town, who lives on the opposite side of the lawn which divides the square, heard Burgmeister's cries and hastened to rescue the imprisoned invalid. Burgmeister was taken charge of by friends, while a general alarm of fire was tective Brett.

Two small fire-engines, worked by hand, and a hook and ladder company soon found themselves beaten on every side by the themselves beaten on every side by the steadily advancing fire, which threatened to lay waste two-thirds of the business portion of the little town, including the Post-Office and Town Hall, if it were not checked in time. At about 2 o'clock help was asked from Passaic and Carlstadt, the two neighboring towns, and they responded with alacrity. The mail matter in the post-office was saved and taken to McGee's drug store, but out of a entire block of houses only three were saved from destruction.

OUR BURDEN OF RAINY DAYS.

We Have Had Nearly Double Our Share During the Past Four Months.

The storm which is with us now was cen tral yesterday in the Mississippi Valley, and moved up on us from the Gulf, getting here early this morning. The indications are that it will rain all day and part of to-morrow, when it will cease, and colder and clearer weather take its place.

Another storm wave is now central near Chicago, moving in a northeasterly direction. It will pass north of this place probably this afternoon.

It is singular that we have had more rain during the past four months than for a corresponding period for many years past.

The following table shows the exact fall of rain for the last four years.

BUT STILL UNPURIFIED.

Only Radical Measures Will Cure the Evil -Further Testimony by Property-Owners and Respectable Residents Pool-Seller Lovell's Flimsy Defense Before Justice Duffy.

There is a marked improvement in the moral tone of West Twenty-eighth street, between Broadway and Sixth avenue, now, and the good effect of THE EVENING WORLD'S expose of the lawlessness carried on in that neighborhood is favorably commented on by the respectable people living in that street. Much, however, remains to be done,

The houses complained of were still running last night, but in a much quieter way, The curtains were drawn down in the windows of 41, 52, 53 and 55, but brilliant lights shone out as a signal that the houses were still open to those who were known by the mmates.

The immates of No. 44 were more brazen than the other places. Mr. Day, who lives in the house adjoining, said this morning that the women could be heard all through the night. They were laughing, singing and banging away at a piano until a late hour this morning.

Mr. Day, with Mr. Berger and several others who signed the petition to have the disorderly resorts closed, was present at Jefferson Market Police Court yesterday afternoon during the examination of Thomas Barnes, the clerk for Lovell, who was arrested last Friday for selling a pool ticket to De-

The gamblers defended themselves by saving that they act as commission agents, charging 25 cents for placing each bet, but Judge Duffy said that the defense was merely a ruse to avoid the spirit of the law, and held the prisoner for trial.

The Judge told the centlemen that he was pleased to see them take such an interest in ridding the city of disorderly characters, and assured them that if the police did not clear these resorts from the neighborhood he would issue all the warrants they might ask for. He would alt them in their good work in every way possible.

Mr. Day thanked Judge Duffy and left the court-room. To an Evening World reporter this morning he said: "Our work has produced good results since your paper took hold of it, and the respectable people of West Twenty-eighth street appreciate your help.

"Capt. Reilly placed several officers in the neighborhood last night, and things were not quite so hoisterous as before, but we do not very way possible.

neighborhood last night, and things were not quite so boisterous as before; but we do not intend to stop because these people quiet down a little. We want them to move and intend that they shall, even if we have to go before the Grand Jury to make them."

It looks as though the crooks in the neighbothood were trying to trap Mr. Day into making some statement that would reflect to his discredit. While a reporter was in his office this

While a reporter was in his office this morning a young sport came in and began talking of buying property on Twenty-eighth street. He said he could buy Loveil's house for less than $30,000, and he wanted Mr. Day to inquire at what figure the house adjoining could be purchased.

"I want to erect a livery stable," said the man. Mr. Day was not to be caught, for he oriekly said.

'I'd rather have any kind of a stable there than a pool-room or disorderly resort of any kind." The man picked up his hat and left without even saying "Good morning."

It is said that Mr. Andrew Gilsey was dining with his mother and a few friends one ing with his mother and a few friends one recent evening, when the bell rang and the colored porter went to the door. He soon returned with a smile on his face that he tried hard to suppress. Mr. Gilsey called him over and asked him what was the matter. "Oh! it's too good for anything," said the servant. "A couple of snorts rang the bell, and when I answered they asked me what time the game would open."

Such interruptions as these are of frequent occurrence, and they will not stop until Cap. Reilly does his duty by clearing out these evil places and the neighborhood regains its former good reputation.

nothing further to say than that Cleary was to be the man.

Mr. Semple, replying to an inquiry, said that neither De Lancey Nicoli nor any other outside help would be employed by Col. Fellows on the trial of Cleary, and that he hoped to convince a jury of his guilt with the aid of Assistants Semple and Parker alone.

Col. Fellows had a long consultation with Chief Byrnes, of the Detective Bureau, and at its conclusion the latter was very entertaining, but as dry of information as a parched sponge.

Cleary is one of the Aldermen who was rec-ognized by the servant girl, Katy Metz, as one of the thirteen combine whom she noted in their visits to her next-door neighbor, Alderman McLoughlin, in whose parlor the scheme by which the Alder-men sold themselves to Jacob Sharp and his friends is alleged to have been concected and carried out.

Inspector Byrnes declares that he knows nothing of the whereabouts of katy, and that his eyes have never feasted on her. Katy is all right, however. She married shortly after Cleary's trial and is now a comfortable little barmaid in her husband's saloon in Tremont. She will be on hand when wanted and Mr. Semple says there will be little or no new evidence in this new trial of Cleary.

Ira Shafer refused to see a reporter at his office to-day, and his clerk declined to take a note from the reporter to his chief, saying, with a wry face, "Pve been kicked out once this morning, and I don't care to go in again."

Mr. Shafer is still retained by Cleary, how-

Adelaide Robbins Winds a Rope Around Her Neck and Rolls Out of Bed. ISPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD, I

NEWBURYPORT, Mass., Jan. 9. A queer case of suicide occurred here this morning. Adelaide West Robbins was a cripple, an inmate of the Almshouse and forty-eight years old. She ate her breakfast as usual, at 6 o'clock and at 9 was found dead. 6 o'clock and at 9 was found dead. Because of her infirmity she had been provided with a rope to assist her in moving about in bed. This she first wound about her neck and then rolled off on the foor, where she was found dead by Supt. Nelson.

CLIPPED HIS HAIR AND MUSTACHE. Outrageous Treatment of Mr. Harrington M. P., in a Dublin Prison.

INV CABLE TO THE PHESS NEWS ASSOCIATION I Dublin, Jan. 9. - One of those disgusting cenes of personal violence not uncommon in the treatment of political prisoners has occurred in the case of Edward Harrington. M. P. When removed to his present place of imprisonment he was taken to the prison barber to have his hair cropped and mustache removed.

He refused to submit willingly to this indignity. Several warders were called, and Mr. Harrington was told that he must obey the prison rules, or force would be employed to carry them out.

SUGAR TRUST BEATEN,

A Disastrous Blow at the Combination of Refineries.

Judge Barrett Decides Against the North River Company.

[From The Evening World of Jan. 28, 1888.]

TWAS A PRETTY WHACK THAT JUDGE BARRETS GAVE THAT HAND TO-DAY.

A Notable Anti-Trust Decision In Behalf of the Public Welfare.

Judge Barrett strikes a vigorous blow at the sugar monopolists. He deserves the thanks of the people. His action is in accordance with the anti-Trust warfare long urged by "The Evening World." As this journal a year ago inaugurated in the public interest the fight against the sugar combine, it views with particular approval the bold and businesslike action of Judge Barrett. His interpretation of the existing law is a decided step in the direction of reform. An appeal will doubtless be taken, but the laurels of victory in the first encounter rest with the people. "The Evening World" congratulates Judge Barrett. It congratulates the Tammany Hall Committee that has pushed the agitation began in these columns. And above all it congratulates the people.

A few more decisions in this spirit will shatter some of the iniquitous Trust rings that threaten the public welfare .- [Ed. In the case of the Attorney-General against the North River Sugar-Refining Company, Sweetheart Was Saved.

Long Island City has a sensation to-day in a tragedy which occurred last night in Mrs. McDermott's boarding-house, on Webster avenue. Young Charles Engleback tried to kill his sweetheart, pretty Bella Kerrigan, and then fatally shot himself.

Both Engleback and the young girl worked in Goode's rope factory and boarded at Mrs. McDermott's. They had kept steady company for six months, were very fond of each other and were engaged to be married.

Charles, however, has been dissatisfied with his lot of late, and complained that he would not seen accept to leave the partnerships shall all be turned into corporations. This, in fact, was done, and thus several of these corporations were organized for the express purpose of oreal-ing the very shares of capital stock through which the combination was to be formed.

Then these corporations, it is stated, shall transfer all their stock to a Board of eleven trustees, to be held subject to the purposes set forth in the Trust deed. Trust certificate are provided for, in acknowledgment of these transfers, to be divided among the combining refineries in proportion to the value of their respective plants. Further analyzing the Trust deed the Judge finds that upon the acceptance of the Trust certificates the original corporate shareholder ceases to hold any further relation with his particular corporation, and thenceforward he is treated as a shareholder in the Trust Board. He can no longer receive a dividend from his He can no longer receive a dividend from his particular corporation, nor indeed can the latter ever again declare a dividend. forms of law, without real membership or genuinely qualified direction—mere abstract figurants of statuatory creation—without life in the concrete or underlying association. Guttenburg Entries for To-Marrow. NORTH HUDSON DRIVING PARK, N. J., Jan
